SCHOOL REPORT.

In submitting our report for the year ending February 15, 1904, we are confident that although there have been some failures, our schools as a whole have not only maintained their usual standard of improvement, but made very good advancement. We believe that in both method and attendance they will compare favorably with the towns around us.

We have endeavored to secure the services of teachers having the ability and desire to impart the instruction most needed by our pupils, but often having to depend upon the recommendation of strangers we are sometimes disappointed in the result; therefore two terms of school were shortened the past year, the school board thinking it best for both teachers and scholars.

Owing to the shortage in both state school fund and town appropriations, we were able to have but twenty weeks' schooling during the year. New geographies and spellers have been introduced, which will explain the increase in the cost of supplies. The schoolhouse in No. 5 has been painted outside, the schoolroom newly plastered and the side walls papered, and it is now a very pleasant room.

In the judgment of the school board, if the people of the town without regard to location will cooperate with the board it would be practicable to effect some consolidation of schools with advantage to all concerned. It is difficult to find teachers to accept small schools, and the maintainance of such is against the best judgment of the board, yet they cannot advance in school management without the cooperation of the people; such an arrangement would leave the schoolhouses as they are, and in case of increase of scholars in any district the school could be resumed.

Several of our pupils have entered the Keene high school during the past year, some taking the second year course of study. There are others who expect to enter the coming year; some also just as good scholars who cannot take a high school course. This is evidence that we have had some good teachers. Now if you are curious to know who the good scholars are, visit the schools after they open this spring, see if they are your girls or boys. Not one-half the parents in town have visited the schools in the last year; if they don't visit them they have no moral right to judge them or find fault with them; we would give more for the report of ten who have visited them than for all those who have not, but tell it second hand.

In regard to criticisms: let the parents visit the schools, then come to the proper school authorities showing wherein there are wrongs and defects; we are sure that efforts will at once be made to remove all hindrances from the schools.

Get acquainted with your teachers, invite them to your homes, and whenever you can justly, give a few words of commendation. Do not look for flaws in their manner of conducting our schools, but seek for the praiseworthy deeds. When we think that they must bear with patience six hours a day children of all ages, and vastly different natures, some of them without proper home training, can we blame them if their patience goes to low water mark? Your own children often scowl and fret at the tasks you give them and yet you feel that you are not unjust; then why think the teacher is unjust? Possibly she refuses to help a scholar because she knows that if he tries he can master the question himself, and if she is a really good teacher working for the best interests of her pupils, she will insist upon their using their own brains instead of borrowing hers. The home is the place where children should learn strict obedience and self government, that they may enter school with the consciousness that they must live up to regulations which are made for the protection and good of all the scholars. To have model schools we must have model pupils, and these we will be likely to have when we have model homes. Let us teach our children good morals, purity of thought and speech, honesty, truthfulness and all things necessary for good citizenship, and we shall be doing a lasting benefit to the rising generation, and our schools will accomplish greater results than heretofore.

A school year of twenty weeks does not give time to achieve the results the times demand. Accordingly, in giving good support to our schools we are not impoverishing but increasing the real wealth of the town. Of course we cannot have any waste of money. We should always practice economy, but guard strenuously against being small or stingy in supplying the needed help for our schools, realizing the fact that "As are the schools, so will be the town." The school board are always glad to receive suggestions anyone may desire to make to them.
